

As motivation, first from classical mechanics the Galilean transformation give the notion of differentiable family of manifolds, second, from systems of differentiable equations we get laminated spaces via integral curves.

Then we give some specific questions/problems for families of complex manifolds parametrised over differentiable manifolds. Finally, we survey a few recent papers that could give an impetus for further research.