

Abstract

Recent experimental results²¹ have shown that injection of polymer particles along with water enhances oil recovery after initial waterflood. The recovery mechanism is believed to