

Contact: Mohsen Nosratinia mohsen.nosratinia@vikinganalytics.se

Any unsupervised Machine learning algorithm makes implicit assumptions about the underlying structure of the system being studied. These assumptions are transferred from experience and knowledge of the users (domain experts, analysts, ...) regarding underlying mechanisms governing the behavior of a system. In many time-series collected from process industry or similar domains where there are large time-constants involved in the behavior of the system dynamic of the system can be assumed to follow a system of ordinary differential equations. Using data-dri